“Honoring Your Father”

What do all fathers have in common? Most love their children, though some may not always say it.

My story is not unusual. My father, Frank Costa, was absent from early in my life though I did love him; I never had a real chance to bond with him as a child. My mother was the true hero, raising me alone, however, the Lord gave me a revelation. Regardless of what happened between my parents, I was not the reason. I was to Honor him no matter what. The Bible explicitly says to do so in Exodus 20:12, (The Ten Commandments) Over the years God gave me opportunities to show him honor. He became ill the last four years of his life and I continued to travel to Florida every several weeks to sit by his bedside for at least a week. I actually began to really appreciate his wife who took great care of him. I never allowed my mind to dwell on the past before he left my mother and me. The Lord also gave me the gift of seeing him accept Jesus in CPC a few years before he became ill.

God usually reminds us, more than once, in His loving way, what He expects of us. ~ SJ Carlo ~
